Dean Hanisch
President and CEO

BIO:

Mr. Hanisch has over 18 years experience as an entrepreneur helping build companies in a variety of industries. Since 2007 he has been acting as Business Development Lead with Paramount Gold (PZG), a US based company dually listed on both the AMEX and TSX, where he was instrumental in helping consolidate the land position through brokering numerous deals with neighboring public companies.

Mr. Hanisch has also been involved in helping a variety of junior mining companies gain awareness in the marketplace while acting as a partner in Launch IR. Previously, he held a variety of positions as President in the IT industry where he was instrumental in building companies that were later purchased by public companies most notably Titan Consulting Group that was acquired by Calian (CTY).

Company Profile:

Mazorro Resources Inc. is a Canadian junior mining exploration company. Mazorro Resources Inc. is publicly listed on the TSX Venture Exchange (V:MZO) and Frankfurt (symbol: JAM). Mazorro focuses on emerging exploration opportunities, with a focus on gold properties in Quebec, Canada. During December 2010, the Company announced a property option agreement with Adventure Gold Inc. (TSX-V: AGE) to acquire up to a total 70% interest in the Lapaska property in the Louvicourt Township of Quebec. The Lapaska property is comprised of 26 claims covering an area of approximately 352 hectares located 20 kilometres east of the city of Val d'Or, in the eastern part of the Val d'Or gold mining camp, Quebec.

CEOCFO: Mr. Hanisch, would you tell us a little about Mazorro?

Mr. Hanisch: Mazorro is gold exploration company that has focused in Quebec primarily along the Cadillac Larder Lake Break. It is up around Val d'Or, which is historically a very prolific gold belt area. We have a flagship project called Lapaska, which we optioned from Adventure Gold. We are currently earning our fifty percent interest in that project. That is kind of our major focus, to develop that project which is primarily a bulk tonnage gold type deposit.

CEOCFO: What made you decide that was a good place to work?

Mr. Hanisch: I came in November so this was a project that they had already picked up. What is interesting about the project and what I like about the project is the gold mineralization is occurring at a shallow depth and it is a bulk tonnage type deposit with a lot of high grade in between. We like it because we can develop this type of project quite rapidly. It is generally a low cost type of mine to develop. There are a number of mines within the region. There are four mills as well and most of those mills are running under capacity. That is kind of what we liked about it; its location, proximity to under capacity mills and therefore we would most likely not have to build a mill or do anything of that nature. We could just build up the resource and make it attractive for someone else in the area that has a mill.

CEOCFO: Would you tell us about your recent news?

Mr. Hanisch: Today's news that came out is consistent with previous drill results, which are creating some nice long intercepts of bulk tonnage type grade. However, the exciting part of the news was the fact that we had 7.7 grams over 12 meters at a shallow depth. Therefore, there is high grade within this structure.

CEOCFO: What is happening on the ground now and what is the timetable going forward?

Mr. Hanisch: On the ground now, we just received those results. Now we will be looking to do a little bit of a small financing in order to earn our fifty percent and continue drilling. Therefore, we plan to accelerate payment to earn our fifty percent and then to look at continuing drilling and prove up this resource going forward. We are going to continue testing the extensions of this mineralized body that we now have in 3-D. We are going to test the 3-D model and continue to expand this ore body.

CEOCFO: You mentioned that the mills are under capacity. Is that because they were built bigger than they needed, or have there been things in the region that have not gone the way anticipated?

Mr. Hanisch: I think a little bit of both. I think both of those are the reason. Some of these are older mills that at one point were running at full capacity but are no longer able to. In the life cycle of a mine generally initially when you are stripping off the top you can put a lot more ore through the mill but as you go further underground it takes a lot more time and it is obviously a lot more expensive to take the ore out of the earth. Therefore, some mature mines are not able to bring as much ore through the mill at one time. Therefore, our goal would be if we prove up the bulk tonnage model is to have that shallow grade ore to mix with the high grade for them to keep the cost down, the mill at full capacity and take advantage of the economies of scale of full capacity.

CEO CFO: What is the financial picture like today for Mazorro?

Mr. Hanisch: Today, we have half a million in hard money, so we are fine from that point of view. We are going to raise a little bit of flow-through which is what we have been using for the actual drilling. We will probably do a little bit of both. The good thing about Quebec is that when we are able to do the hard financing, we are able to get roughly about 40% back in tax credits so that we can then put back into the ground. Therefore, we are going to be doing a mix of both. Quebec is a great place to raise money for projects.

CEO CFO: Has the investment community been paying attention so far?

Mr. Hanisch: I think they have been to a certain extent, at times. I mean the market is not the best and I think this isn't their first project that Mazorro came out with. Therefore, I think there are some legacy investors that have exited the story. But since we have had this project and kind of restarted I think we are starting to get some traction. We are looking to bring in new investors that see the quality of these results and want to stay with us for the remainder of the story and the building of the company.

CEO CFO: Are you getting much interest on the Frankfurt Exchange?

Mr. Hanisch: I do not think we have done a lot of volume on the Frankfurt Exchange. Many people go on Frankfurt at the very beginning, but you actually have to market there and spend your time there. Therefore, one of our goals is to try and do a couple more road shows in Europe and see if we can unlock some value there.

CEO CFO: Why should investors look at Mazorro Resources?

Mr. Hanisch: It is the location. It is the right price for the stage we are in. We are undervalued immensely. Our results are way above average. At the end of the day, the property has to be there and you have to have your results and a lot of companies do not. In our case we are fortunate enough that this property is located in the right region with mills that are close by and a possible quick turnaround to exit strategy.

CEO CFO: So you have everything you need for success!

Mr. Hanisch: Yes, we just need the market to improve.
